Mr. Aguilar: Today we are going to talk about electricity. How may we produce electricity?
Andrew: What kind of electricity sir?
Mr. Aguilar: That's a good question. In fact, we may produce static electricity and electric current.
William: How may we produce them?
Mr. Aguilar: You may produce static electricity by rubbing.
Andrew: May we produce electric current by rubbing?
Mr. Aguilar: No, you may not. You may produce electric current by means of batteries or by means of generators.
Claire: What's a battery?
Mr. Aguilar: A battery is a group of two or more cells connected together for furnishing electric current.
William: And, what's a generator?
Mr. Aguilar: A generator is a machine by which mechanical energy is changed into electrical energy.
Andrew: I have a battery at home. May I bring it?
Mr. Aguilar: Of course, you may.
Claire: May we go out now?
Mr. Aguilar: Yes, you may. The class is over.
